Meet the K-9* Corps - Bonja

Imagine bringing your pet to work or school with you every day. For most people, it's not possible - but that's what Jason Thomas does! Jason is an American police officer, and every day he works with his dog, Bonja, a female German shepherd. Bonja is part of the K-9 Corps. This is a group of dogs with special skills so that they can find criminals and solve crimes.

Jason and Bonja start work at 8 am. Often they work at airports so that Bonja can sniff out illegal items. Also, twice a week, Jason trains Bonja so that she doesn't lose her skills!

Sometimes, Bonja takes part in competitions. She always tries her best to make Jason proud!

Work finishes at 5 pm, and Jason and Bonja return to Jason's home. Then, for the rest of the day, Bonja is like a normal dog. She plays with Jason's children in the garden and sits on the couch while Jason and his wife watch TV! Then, at around 9 pm, it's time for bed. After all, a working dog needs a good night's sleep!

*K-9: police dog.

1. Jason is a _____ officer.
a) fire b) police c) security d) school
2. Jason and Bonja often work at _____.
a) schools b) gardens c) airports d) police stations
3. Bonja sometimes joins _____ to make Jason proud.

TEXT II

Terry- Six hours ago

Hello from Norway! I'm here on a skiing holiday with my parents and my cousin Laura. It's snowing here and freezing cold. Laura is skiing, but I just want to stay inside and keep warm! I plan to go skiing tomorrow, though and I also want to go on a boat trip around the Lofoten Islands.

They have amazing wildlife like dolphins, sea eagles, and moose! And you can see the aurora borealis at night. This is when there are strange red and green lights in the sky. It's like nature's fireworks display! I can't wait.

Stacy- Three hours ago

Hi, Terry! Norway sounds amazing! Actually, I'm abroad, too! I'm on a city break in Ljubljana, Slovenia with my sister Kate. We're staying with my aunt Claire who lives here. At the moment, Kate and Claire are sightseeing, and I'm checking my emails in a café. I have a great view of the city from here! It's cold and foggy so everyone's wearing coats and scarves outside. Anyway, I have to go now and meet the girls for lunch. I'm starving!

Tony- Two hours ago

I feel so lucky, Terry! I'm here in Nosy Be- it's a seaside resort in the north of Madagascar - and the weather is fantastic! We are all wearing T-shirts and shorts and we're enjoying the sun and the sand! I'm here with my family - and both of my brothers are scuba diving off the coast.

I'm sunbathing, though. I usually see the sights when I go on holiday, but this time I just want to relax!

TEXT III

Charles Dickens

Charles Dickens was born on 7th February 1812 in Portsmouth, England, and later moved to London. Dickens' father worked as a clerk in the navy, but the family didn't have much money, so Dickens had to leave school and started working at a factory. He often felt lonely and upset, but the three years he spent in the factory gave him the inspiration for many of his novels.

In 1833, Dickens became a reporter and started writing his own stories. As well as many novels, Dickens also enjoyed writing plays. He was full of energy and loved travelling abroad. He married Catherine Hogarth in 1836 and they had ten children together.

Charles Dickens died on 9th June 1870. People remember him as one of the greatest English writers of all time. He was the author of classic stories such as Great Expectations, Oliver Twist and David Copperfield, with so many characters that people still know today.
